PRICE 2 CENTS

36 MEN INDICTED FOR MURDER IN HERRIN CASE ARE ADMITTED TO BAIL

Bond for Six Fixed at $20,000, Twenty at $10,000 and Ten at $5,000—Six of Those Denied Release Among Defendants Now in Custody.

UNION TO SURRENDER 2 OTHER DEFENDANTS

Bankers and Business Men of Herrin and Carville in Court Prepared to Furnish Bonds Which Total $370,000.

By the Associated Press. MARION, Ill., Sept. 25.—Circuit Judge Hartwell today granted applications for the release on bond of 36 of the 44 men indicted for murder in connection with the Herrin mine killings, but denied liberty to the remaining eight. The Judge acted on the applications after attorneys for the miners' union promised to surrender Jesse Childers and Oscar Howard, the two charged with murder who have not been arrested yet.

Bankers and business men of Herrin and some merchants from Carville were in court prepared to furnish the bonds, which will total $370,000. Six will be allowed freedom on $20,000 bond each, 20 on $10,000 bond each, and 10 on $5,000 bond each. It previously had been announced that 10 would be released on $10,000 bond and 20 on $5,000, but this was changed at the last minute.

Those Denied Bonds. Those refused liberty are: Otis Clark, the first man indicted, Bert Clark, James Brown, negro, Leva Sam, Phillip Fontanella, Peter Hill and Childers and Howard. The bonds to be allowed freedom upon furnishing $20,000 bond each are: Percy Hall, Joseph Corns, Charles Rogers, John Kelley, a constable at Herrin, James Galloway and James W. Kerr.

The amount of the bonds was fixed by the amount and character of the alleged evidence against the men.

Early Trials Probable. It is reported that the trials will be started soon, probably within a month. The State has announced its intention to push the trials to an early start.

With the grand jury recessing for a month, the motives of Attorney General Brundage of Illinois, who is in charge of the prosecution, were revealed yesterday in a statement by A. W. Kerr, chief counsel for the miners' association, who charged that the jurors' report concerning certain State and county officials for failure to prevent the loss of life, "bears all the earmarks of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce."

What were termed "unethical" methods used by Brundage in the work of the grand jury were denounced by Kerr, as was the alleged antagonistic attitude toward organized labor by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Kerr's statement follows in part: "The grand jury should be advised by the constituted advisers of such bodies. Counsel for the miners have hereby bitterly assailed and rebuffed the conduct of the Attorney General of this State in making speeches to the grand jury through the public press and in his effort to try this case through the press."

What charge, and deliberately charge, that the report of the grand jury bears all the earmarks of having been drafted in advance by the Attorney-General at 10 South La Salle street, Chicago, Ill., the Chicago address of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, in collaboration with the officials of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. It runs true to form of the public emissions of that organized labor-hating organization.

"If Attorney-General Brundage has any case against the men indicted by the special grand jury there is a case for the grand jury to try. Let them find the guilty or innocent of these men. It should not be done by the grand jury nor through a report prepared at the instigation of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. These Victims Not Mentioned. That a single tear has been shed by the Chamber of Commerce nor by the State of Illinois."

FORD COMPANY PROFITS SAID TO BE IN EXCESS OF $6,000,000 A MONTH

"Making More Cars and Clearing More Money Than Ever," Says Detroit Manufacturer—$76,000,000 Earnings Last Year High Mark

DETROIT, Sept. 25.—Henry Ford is making more cars and more profit this year than ever before. Back of these facts is perhaps the most amazing money story that ever was told, which is set down here as Ford told it to a correspondent.

Ford's profits for the calendar year 1921 were $76,000,000. This was the high mark of his career up to that time. It was particularly notable because, at the beginning of the year, Wall street, believing him to be in financial difficulties, had sent a banker to Ford to offer him a big loan and to designate the next average monthly profit so far.

During the latter part of 1921 and the early part of 1922 Ford reduced the prices of his cars and tractors sufficiently to wipe out his $76,000,000 profits of 1921 and leave a deficit of $10,000,000. That is to say, if the same number of cars and tractors were to be made in 1922 that were made in 1921 and wages and the prices of raw materials were to remain the same, there would be a deficit of $10,000,000 on the business of 1922.

Ford Explains. With these facts in view Ford was asked today how he was making it.

"We are making more cars, more tractors and more profits," he replied, "than ever before. Our average profits last year were a little more than $6,000,000 a month. Our average monthly profit so far this year have been considerably more than that. We are making 5100 cars a day. This is every car we can possibly turn out with our present facilities; it is more than we ever made before, yet it is about 200 cars a day less than our orders."

This is how Ford explained the unusual financial situation:

NIGHT AND DAY BANK CLAIMS FOR $2,693,999 FILED

Deputy State Commissioner of Finance Expects to Pay Creditors About 75 Cents on Dollar.

LOSS TO TOTAL ABOUT $1,000,000

Largest Individual Claim Against Defunct Institution Is That of Depository for $92,974.

Claims totaling $2,693,999.74 against the defunct Night and Day Bank were filed today in the office of the Recorder of Deeds.

D. W. Ross, special deputy of the State Commissioner of Finance, in filing the list of claims, said he expected to be able to pay creditors, whose claims are allowed, about 75 cents on the dollar.

The book assets of the bank, a schedule of which was filed with the Recorder of Deeds May 14, totaled $2,911,677.33, but this included fictitious "cash items" amounting to $783,535.91, and unsecured loans of $765,819. It is estimated that the bank's creditors will lose approximately $1,000,000.

The claims include individual accounts totaling $1,298,101.35; savings accounts, $1,122,168.79; Christmas savings accounts, $12,611.35; time deposits and outstanding drafts, $148,729.23; miscellaneous claims, $19,404.89, and bills payable, $92,974.12.

The latter item, representing the largest individual claim against the bank, was presented by the American Trust Co., which acted as depository for the Night and Day Bank, and is secured by a pledge of all bonds owned by the Night and Day Bank. The par value of these bonds, issued by Missouri and Arkansas for drainage funds, is $168,500. The Night and Day Bank borrowed $50,000 from the American Trust Co., Dec. 27 last, and $100,000 Dec. 30. The total amount was reduced by collection of the bonds, which were sold at a loss to the company before the bank was closed last Jan. 6.

William P. Reed through his attorney, Alroy S. Phillips, claims $1250 in Liberty bonds, which, he says, disappeared from his safe deposit box at the Night and Day Bank some time prior to Oct. 15 last. This is the only claim involving alleged irregularity in the safe deposit department of the bank. Reed filed a claim with the recorder of deeds, but the claim was referred to the insurance company on the bank's protection bond, but was rejected on the ground that the bank's bond did not apply to the safe deposit department. Reed's address is not given and his attorney is out of the city.

Claim by Former Governor. "Former Gov. Elliott W. Major, a director and former counsel for the bank, who, with other directors and officers of the bank, is under indictment charged with accepting deposits when the bank was insolvent claims $3887 for attorney's fees, asserting part of that amount is due as a retainer for having acted as special counsel for the bank, and the remainder as fees for having acted as counsel for the bank in specific cases."

H. H. Hohenschild, former president and director of the bank, also under indictment, claims $1875 salary due him from the bank for October, November and December, 1921.

It has been pointed out that any creditor of the bank has a right to file objection to claims which he believes should not be allowed. The time to file such objection expires Oct. 21. Finance Commissioner Hughes has announced that it would be his policy to hold the directors of the bank responsible for any loss to creditors, on the theory that they were expected, as trustees of the bank's funds, to exercise the same diligence and care regarding the bank's business that any ordinary prudent man would use in handling his own affairs. This theory, Commissioner Hughes said, had been supported by Supreme Court decisions.

Miss M. E. Geary, employed by an estate with offices in the Chemical Building, claims a one-fifth interest in real estate mortgages totaling $30,000. The bank's assets include a four-fifths interest in the mortgages. Miss Geary's claim amounts to $6000.

The largest deposit creditor is Typographical Union No. 3, with a claim of $27,000. Deputy Commissioner Ross expects that sufficient funds will be available by Nov. 1 to make a distribution of the assets.

WOMEN STUDENTS FIX 'NO DATE' NIGHTS AS AID TO ATHLETICS

"Too Many Dates Interfere With Athletics," Says Announcement at Northwestern

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Northwestern University women students have agreed to have no social engagements with university men on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays during the coming year, according to an announcement by Miss Helen Badenoch, president of the Women's Self-Government Association at the institution.

"This pledge is taken because we girls believe that too many dates interfere with a college man's athletics and school will suffer if the athletics do not have the proper time for training," explained Miss Badenoch. With the announcement of the three "no-date" nights came a statement of the rules of conduct for "no-date" under the self-government association. Some of the rules are: Lights must be out in all the houses at 10:30 p. m. Callers may be received between 5 and 8 p. m. from Monday to Thursday and on Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 7 to 10 p. m.

When leaving the place of residence in the evening the destination and hour of return must always be reported before signing off.

No college woman or group of women may go to the city for dinner except with an escort or chaperon.

Women are not allowed on the campus after dusk, excepting to visit the library or other buildings for definite college purposes.

Riding in an auto after 9 p. m. is forbidden excepting with a chaperon or in groups of more than one couple.

Freshmen may not go out of Evanston at night without chaperonage satisfactory to the house president, excepting to places on the approved list.

END OF BOTH BIG POLITICAL PARTIES FORESEEN BY GARRISON

Former Secretary of War Says Difficulty of Finding Difference Will Result in New Factions.

By the Associated Press. DENVER, Colo., Sept. 25.—That the two great political parties in the United States are having difficulty in finding a difference which they can differ materially, and that the natural outcome of the situation is likely to result in the scrapping of the Republican and Democratic parties in favor of a new party, was the opinion of Lindsey M. Garrison, former Secretary of War, who is here to attend a hearing in the United States District Court.

"I have a very decided difference of opinion among American people regarding our Constitution," he said. "While I class myself as a conservative, I have no quarrel with that large and growing body of Americans who feel that this country has outgrown its Constitution, and that the time for change in our form of government is here. They have a legitimate right to work for the carrying out of their opinions, provided lawful measures are used. A new political alignment is imminent in America—the conservatives of both parties against the radicals."

DROWNS WITH MUSIC SOUND OF DRILLING TO GET AT SAFE

Roomer in House Next to Clothing Store Finds Records and Takes Bricks Out of Wall.

By the Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25.—Mrs. A. Remington today discovered why a young man who rented a room in her house in Dauphin street a month ago was so fond of music.

With the finding of an acetylene torch, a safe in the clothing store of D. Mercier's Sons next door, half drilled through, and a hole in the wall between the young man's room and the clothing store, the police are now seeking the musical roomer.

"He seemed like such a nice young man," said Mrs. Remington. "And so fond of music. He had a phonograph and two records, 'Under the South Moon' and 'Up to You,' were the names of them; but he never seemed to tire of playing them. And to think that all the time he was taking bricks out of the wall."

The musical roomer wanted his room cleaned only twice a week. This morning when he went up to clean the young man was gone.

TWO WOMEN HELD IN DALLAS IN $250,000 LIBERTY BOND CASE

Man Also Detained in Connection With Disappearance of Paper From Chicago Bank.

By the Associated Press. DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 25.—One man and two women are under arrest here in connection with the disappearance of about $250,000 worth of Liberty Bonds from a bank in Chicago in 1918. The man and one of the women were arrested in a hotel Saturday. The third arrest was made this morning when another woman was taken from a passenger train from Tulsa, Ok.

BALFOUR DECLARES A MASSACRE OF ARMENIANS AND GREEKS IMPENDS

September 30 Is Said to Have Been Set by Mustafa Kemal When Refugees in Smyrna Must Evacuate Seaport.

FATE OF 200,000 CHRISTIANS UNKNOWN

Assembly of League of Nations Is Much Affected by Relief Fund Appeal of Englishman Who Cites Britain's Pledge.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—The Earl of Balfour told the Assembly of the League of Nations today that a massacre of the Greek and Armenian refugees in Smyrna is impending. He said Great Britain was ready to give 150,000 to a relief fund and he appealed to the other countries to contribute.

Lord Balfour especially asked the Persians, representing the only Muslim nation here, to do what they could toward relieving this situation, and Prince Dowlat of Persia offered to give all the help he could in promoting the relief work and to serve as a mediator if necessary.

The Assembly was much affected by Lord Balfour's appeal. According to the British report, the massacre had been set for Sept. 30.

A Smyrna dispatch Sunday said Mustafa Kemal had set Sept. 30 as the date by which the evacuation of the 80,000 or more refugees remaining in Smyrna must be completed. If vessels were not sent by that time, it was added, the refugees would be taken into the interior. American relief workers were said to have been unsuccessful in learning the fate of 200,000 Christians already deported by the Turks.

POSSIBLE TO BRING APPARENTLY DEAD TO LIFE, SCIENTIST SAYS

Dr. T. J. Allen Says Dogs Have Been Revived With Exception of Functioning Mentally.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Bringing those apparently dead back to life, provided the organs of the body are not worn out, is among the possibilities offered by the development of a new science, Dr. Thomas J. Allen declared here yesterday in an address before the Chicago Society of Anthropology on its latest discoveries.

The new science, Dr. Allen said, explains the mode and nature of life. Life, he said, consists of a series of isonizing movements, or alternate contractions and relaxations. Revival of the apparently dead is possible, he said, in an example where the result is brought about by alternate pressure and expansion of the lungs and other organs. He declared that apparently dead dogs had been revived to such an extent that they could walk and do everything except function mentally and said it would only be a question of time before the same effect could be produced in the body of a man or woman. He asserted he believed a means would also be found of restoring the mental processes provided the organs were sound.

FRONT ENTRANCE TYPE CARS FOR OLIVE-UNIVERSITY LINE

Ten of Type on Grand Boulevard Put On and Line Will Be Equipped Entirely With Them.

Ten new cars were put into service yesterday on the Olive-University line of the United Railways, and it is announced that this line will be equipped entirely with new cars of the same type. The type is that of the cars in use on the Grand boulevard line—front entrance, side exit, pay as you pass the conductor, who is stationed in the center.

The cars, which are being built in the United Railways shops at a cost of about $10,000 each, are part of a group of 66. The others will be turned out at the rate of two a week and put into service. The Olive-University line ordinarily requires about 40 cars. Some mechanical improvements have been made since the first cars of this type were built and officers of the road declare that those put into service yesterday are "the last word."

SULTAN PROTESTS WHEN ALLIES IGNORE HIM IN DEALING WITH KEMALISTS

By the Associated Press. CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 25. THE Sultan's Government has protested to the allies because the joint allied note was not addressed to the Sublime Porte.

The announcement that the allies would return Thrace to Turkey and permit the ultimate occupation of Constantinople by the Kemalists, coupled with the fact that the allied note ignores the Sultan's Government, renewed the fear that the Sultan will be forced to abdicate.

Damat Farid Pasha, the Sultan's brother-in-law, and several times Grand Vizier, left hurriedly for Switzerland yesterday. He was escorted to the station by the British Chief of Police, Five Pashas, 10 former Ministers and many opposition editors also left.

It is impossible to meet the demand of the Greeks and Armenians for Turkish territory which has increased in price from $3 to $5. A local Austrian firm has telegraphed to Vienna for 200,000 fennes.

MANDATORY LABEL LAW IS URGED FOR UNIONS

Central Body Asks Locals to Require Each Member to Have Six on Wearing Apparel.

The 200 local unions affiliated with the Central Trades and Labor Union, representing a total membership of approximately 80,000 miscellaneous trades unionists, were urged to adopt a mandatory label law, requiring each member to have at least six union labels on his wearing apparel, in a resolution adopted by the central body yesterday.

The action followed a request from the label trades section, sent to the local unions several weeks ago, which was complied with by only 13 of the unions. It was pointed out that if organized labor is to succeed in its fight against the open-shop movement it must use proper use of its purchasing power.

In the event the mandatory label law is adopted the question of penalty for violation would be left to the individual unions. It has been suggested that fines or suspensions would be the punishment in most cases.

Plans for a mass meeting of trades unionists to protest the Federal injunction against striking railroad shopmen, indorse the movement to impeach Attorney-General Daugherty and pledge support to the strikers will be arranged by the Central Trades and Labor Union Thursday night.

A special meeting is to be held that night at Central Trades headquarters at 2228 Olive street to discuss the formation of a new political party opposed to law by injunction, and a request from President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor for the mass meeting will be taken up at that time.

FASHION DESIGNERS CHARGED WITH CAUSING WOMEN'S DEATHS

Psychotherapy Society Speaker Accuses Artists of Making Beauty Synonymous with Thinness.

PARIS, Sept. 25.—Designers of fashion plates for newspapers and store catalogues passed a bad quarter of an hour last week before the Psychotherapy Society, when their influence was charged with being the cause of the deaths of many young women.

The details of two cases were given. The girls, in their desire to live up to the forms designed in the fashion plates, reduced their vitality to so low a point that the first slight malady carried them off. One speaker accused the artists of making beauty synonymous with thinness, flat chests and the absence of muscles.

GERMANS DELIVER NOTES FOR PAYMENTS DUE TO BELGIUM

Paper Is for 90,000,000 Gold Marks, Credit Being Given for Merchandise Deliveries.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Sept. 25.—The German delegation today delivered to the reparations commission here notes for approximately 90,000,000 gold marks in payment of the August and Sept. 15 allotments due to Belgium. The payments due aggregate 100,000,000 gold marks, but there are credits for merchandise previously delivered, which will serve to supplement the present transfer.

245 Auto Drivers Arrested. Two hundred forty-five automobile drivers and owners were arrested yesterday by policemen stationed in Forest Park along the boulevards. They were charged either with falling to observe the boulevard stop ordinance or with having glaring or ineffective headlights.

GREEK-TURK MEETING IS SOUGHT TO DISCUSS PEACE

Kemalists Object to Allies' Conference Proposals, Fearing Advantage for Greeks; Hamid Bey Wants British Activity Suspended.

ALLIED ENVOY TO CONFER WITH KEMAL

Franklin - Bouillon Says Agreement by Nations Is Victory for Common Sense; Turkish Cavalry Quits Neutral Zone After Invasion.

By the Associated Press. CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 25.—The Allied High Commissioners plan to meet today for the purpose of bringing together representatives of Greece and the Turkish Nationalists for the conference at Mudanya, at which the terms of an armistice are expected to be settled.

Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, commander of the American naval detachment in Turkish waters, will attend in the capacity of observer for the United States.

Hamid Bey, representative of the Ankara Government in Constantinople, declared today that the allied invitation to a peace conference could not be accepted by the Turkish Nationalists on the terms laid down.

"We cannot accept the allied terms because they propose to demilitarize the Sea of Marmara and part of Thrace, which would prevent us from bringing our troops from Asia to Europe," said Hamid in a statement to the correspondent.

Objection to Check on Army. "Neither can we accept literally the condition that our army shall not advance while the peace conference is progressing."

"This would as circumscribe our movements that the enemy would have ample opportunity to prepare forces for a fresh attack and would give the allies a chance to complete their land and naval reinforcements in the event the conference failed."

"Regarding the straits, we have already admitted freedom for the passage of all vessels through the Dardanelles, but we are not prepared to define in what authority or body the control shall be vested. That question must be settled at a conference between the Turks and the allies."

"We also insist that all nations having commercial, military or other interests in the Dardanelles, including Russia and Bulgaria, shall participate in the conference."

"We further insist that Great Britain shall suspend all naval and military movements in the straits during the course of the conference."

Precautions in Constantinople. Plans for a possible invasion by the Kemalists have been promptly made. The allied headquarters, which hitherto have been outside the city, have been moved to the British headquarters, which were formerly a colossal Turkish barracks located in the heart of the European quarter. This move was made to enable Gen. Harrington to have his department and staff within immediate touch.

The British General Headquarters has informed the Associated Press that all measures for the maintenance of order have been completed. These measures are of the most severe character.

Admiral Bristol has conferred with embassy and naval staffs regarding further steps to protect Americans and naturalized citizens. Two officers are on duty at the American embassy throughout the night and the building is carefully guarded by marines. The precautionary plans have been so complete that Admiral Bristol believes that those folk at home who have relatives in Constantinople need have no serious cause for anxiety.

London Press Accepts Paris Decision Without Enthusiasm. By the Associated Press. LONDON, Sept. 25.—Enthusiasm for the Paris Near Eastern decision was lacking in the press comment this morning, the tenor of most editorials being that it was the only way to avoid war and maintain agreement among the allies and therefore had to be adopted.

MRS. TERNAN DENIES MEETINGS

Woman Restrained With Difficulty During Defendant's Testimony and Collapses After Scene.

SITDOWN, YOU'LL HEAR MORE, HE TELLS HER

Another Witness for the Defense Testifies He Saw Poulin at Church on Nights Plaintiff Named.

By the Associated Press.
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 25.—Harry Poulin, charged with being the father of Mrs. John P. Ternan's child, took the witness stand in his own defense today.

A witness for Poulin testified that he had seen Mrs. Ternan at her home, exclaiming: "You are a liar."

"Sit down, you'll hear more than that," answered Poulin. It was with difficulty that the woman was restrained from interrupting his testimony.

Albert Davis, earlier in the morning, had testified that he is a communist at St. Joseph church and that he saw Poulin and his wife at the Lenten services of 1921, during which time Mrs. Ternan had testified to having had clandestine meetings with the defendant. He said his wife was directly behind that of the Poulin family and that he (Davis) had missed the services only three times. He knew Poulin only by sight at that time, he added.

Davis' testimony was interrupted frequently by Prosecutor Jefferson with insinuations that the witness was making misleading statements and "is so nervous now that he can hardly sit in a witness chair."

Milton S. Reudenstein, an officer of the store in which Poulin is employed, caused another stir when he testified strenuously to being photographed while he was on the witness stand. He admitted having discussed the case with John Anderson, fellow workman of Poulin, and also with Samuel Schwartz, an attorney for the defense, for the purpose of refreshing his mind on the case.

REED AGAIN REFUSES TO ANSWER BREWSTER CHALLENGE

Democratic Nominee Here to Prepare His Opening Campaign Speech at Mexico.

Senator James A. Reed, Democratic nominee for re-election, today declined to make any further comment on his refusal to enter into an agreement with R. R. Brewster, of Kansas City, Republican senatorial nominee, for simultaneous expression of their views on proposals to modify the Volstead act. Senator Reed is in St. Louis, preparing a speech for the opening of his campaign Wednesday at Mexico.

"I will not enter into any controversy with Mr. Brewster," Reed said. "If he wishes to make any more statements or pronouncements that is up to him."

"I expect to conduct my campaign my own way," Reed continued. "and Brewster can look after his. He has made no definite statement on his prohibition position, although he has been regarded as a 'dry.' He should make his views clear before questions arise."

Senator and Mrs. Reed reached St. Louis last night and will remain here tomorrow. Senator Stanley of Kentucky and Senator Robinson of Arkansas who will speak with Reed at his opening meeting, are expected to arrive here tomorrow afternoon.

ALLIES PREPARE FOR GREEK-TURK MEETING ON ARMISTICE TERMS

Admiral Earl Beatty, the Earl of Devon and the other military and naval personages in attendance, Premier Lloyd George congratulated Lord Curzon on the result of his mission to Paris, which was regarded in official quarters as eminently satisfactory.

The incident of the invasion of the neutral zone at Chanak, when British cavalry which entered the zone Saturday night retired Sunday after a meeting between the commanders of the Turkish and British forces, was looked upon as indicating there need be no fear of the repetition of such incidents.

A Reuters dispatch from Constantinople today says the meeting between Gen. Shuttlesworth and the Turkish commander was of the friendliest nature, the Turkish officer, in agreeing to withdraw his cavalry behind the neutral line, declaring the Kemalists did not wish to go to war with the British Empire.

The British Government and military authorities are continuing preparations for all eventualities. British troops in Constantinople have been ordered to Chanak, while there is an almost constant movement of naval units from Gibraltar and Malta in the direction of Turkish waters.

Kemal Has "Hard-Bitten" Army. According to a statement given to the Glasgow Sunday Post by Major-General Sir Charles Townshend, who has just returned from a visit to Kemal Pasha at Turkish headquarters, Kemal has no desire to fight Great Britain.

Gen. Townshend says that Kemal Pasha has nearly 500,000 armed men under his orders, nearly all of them "hard-bitten and well set up fellows."

Two of the greatest difficulties presenting themselves at present appear to be, first, that the Kemalists, while disposed to accept the invitation to a conference, are likely to insist that Russia also shall be invited to sit in this conference, and, second, that they are not disposed to suspend hostilities during the conference, but, on the contrary, maintain their right to pursue the defeated Greeks into Thrace and protect the Moslems there from possible Greek reprisals.

ALLIED ENVOY ON WAY TO SEE KEMAL

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Sept. 25.—Henry Franklin-Bouillon, prior to his departure for Smyrna yesterday with the mandate virtually of France, Great Britain and Italy, to deal with Mustafa Kemal Pasha, received the following message from the Turkish Nationalist leader:

"I await your arrival. Your friend, 'MUSTAFA KEMAL.'"

The swiftest cruiser of the French navy, the Metz, was prepared to take M. Franklin-Bouillon aboard at Smyrna today and he will reach Smyrna Thursday morning.

"This has been a victory for common sense for about the first time in history," said the French envoy to the Associated Press correspondent yesterday. "Much of the success in reaching the agreement was due to Lord Curzon, whose handling of the negotiations was in the finest spirit and worthy of British statesmanship."

"M. Poincaré wrote the note to Mustafa Kemal, and day by day it has been reached, but believes that the agreement between the French, British and Italian Governments and the concessions they have made in meeting the Turkish Nationalist aims have brought about strong probabilities of peace."

"Europe, especially England, has been saved from great danger," he continued. "I am not sure that England yet knows how great a danger there cannot be peace in Europe without peace in the East, and there cannot be peace in the East without peace with Turkey."

On learning that Turkish irregulars had crossed into the neutral zone, he said he did not think the news serious, because, he said, these bands of armed horsemen were independent formations, outside the regular forces of the Nationalist command. The peace conference, he thought, would be held at Smyrna or Erzurum, probably the latter, which has good cable communications with Constantinople.

PAROLED PRISON EDITOR BEING HELD BY POLICE

Richard C. Gray Said to Be in Trouble With Authorities at Portland, Ore. By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 25.—The State Prison Board today received information from Portland, Ore., that Richard C. Gray, former editor of the prison paper, the Weekly Clarion, who was released on a parole June 15 last is in trouble with the police of Portland, Ore.

Gray served here 5 years of a 10-year term for highway robbery committed in Kansas City. E. B. Stone of Portland, a newspaper writer, to whom Gray was paroled, sent the information. His previous letters have contained good reports as to Gray, but he now reports that Gray, under the name of Marvin Bailey, is being held by the Portland police in connection with inquiry into charges of forgery, highway robbery and murder, though Gray is not suspected of the last named crime.

He also reported that the authorities were investigating a charge that Gray had taken a 16-year-old girl from one state to another, just before Gray was married in Yerington, Nev., to a school teacher who corresponded with him during his stay in prison here. The marriage took place about Aug. 15.

Stone enclosed newspaper clippings as to the arrest and detention of Gray, or Bailey, as he is known to the Portland police. The records here show that Gray, in the past, used the name of Bailey.

The board, after considering Stone's letter, voted to notify the Portland police that Gray's return to the prison here is desired when the charges against him in Portland are disposed of. In other words, if Gray is not sent to an Oregon prison, it is planned to bring him back for the rest of his term here.

JURY SAID TO BE AGAINST HANGING IN NALTY CASE

Body Reported to Be Trying to Agree on Length of Prison Sentence for Ayers and O'Malley.

The jury which heard evidence in the Nalty murder trial at Edwardsville (Ill.) has voted not to impose the death sentence upon any of the defendants, according to a report in circulation among court attaches there today.

The reports state that the jury, which received the case at 4:30 p. m. Saturday, is now attempting to reach an agreement upon the number of years in the penitentiary it shall sentence John J. Bauer, alias "Big George" Ayers, and George T. O'Malley, the two defendants who admitted in their testimony that they participated in the affray at Granite City July 22, which resulted in the fatal shooting of Deputy Sheriff Patrick J. Nalty.

No indication has come from the jury as to its intentions regarding sentences for Mrs. Bernice Traynor and Lyle Watkins, the other two defendants, in whose defense an ability was interposed. The three men are St. Louis police characters and two women is the wife of James Traynor, now in jail at Edwardsville.

When the jurors went to breakfast today they appeared to have rested well last night. Court attaches said the appearance of the men did not indicate that they had become deadlocked. It was the expectation of court officials and others in Edwardsville that a verdict would be agreed upon today.

Under Illinois law there is no time limit upon the jury deliberations in a murder case. In case of a disagreement the foreman reports to the court what conditions are and if, in the opinion of the court, no verdict can be reached, the jury is discharged and a new trial ordered.

Judge Louis Bernreuter of Nashville, who presided at the Nalty trial, today opened court in Belleville. Judge J. Frank Gillham of Edwardsville is holding court at Chester this week.

In the event of a verdict at Edwardsville either Judge M. R. Sullivan of the City Court of Granite City or Judge Levi Yeager of the Alton City Court will be summoned to receive the verdict. That step was decided upon in a conference between Judge Bernreuter and the attorneys in the Nalty case. City Court judges in Illinois have the same authority as a Circuit Judge in such matters.

EDITOR, WHO ONCE WAS KIDNAPED, ENDS LIFE

Jacques Villard Cuts Throat—Both Legs Had Been Amputated Seven Years Ago.

Jacques Villard, 40 years old, 7304 Pershing avenue, University City, crippled editor and language teacher, for whom a nation-wide search was made when he was kidnaped from the La Salle Hotel, Chicago, Dec. 27, 1920, and held for ransom, ended his life at his home at 6:30 a. m. today by cutting his throat with a pocket knife.

Villard, whose legs were amputated above the knees seven years ago, had been in ill health recently. His wife, Mrs. Marie Villard, told police that he awoke her at about 6:30 this morning, and asked that she get him some medicine, as he was having trouble with his respiration.

Upon returning with the medicine she found he was bleeding from a gash in the throat, and by his side lay his pocket knife. A neighborhood physician was called, but Villard died in 30 minutes.

An inquest was held at the home and a coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide.

Besides his wife, Villard is survived by a 4-year-old daughter, Cilena.

Kidnaped in Chicago. Villard, who edited a Polish-English newspaper printed in Chicago, was kidnaped from the La Salle Hotel in Chicago on Dec. 27, 1920, by three men, who offered to take him to a railway station. He was held for 11 days in a darkened room, during which time his abductors continually attempted to make him write to his wife for ransom money. Villard convinced them that his wife had no great sum with which to ransom him, and he was finally robbed of money and jewelry amounting to less than $500. He then was taken to Franklin court, Chicago, and left for the sidewalk in zero weather. Pedestrians, believing he was intoxicated, ignored him, until he was found by a taxi driver, who took him to a railroad station, where he was put on a train bound for St. Louis.

Permitted to Write to Wife. During the time Villard was held captive he was allowed to write his wife a note stating that he was in New York, so that she would not become alarmed at his absence. Villard signed his name "Jack" to the note, an unusual signature, and his wife, sensing something wrong, notified a detective agency. Villard told detectives following his release, that his captors weighed the chances of murdering him or releasing him before placing him on the sidewalk.

In addition to editing his paper, Villard until recently conducted a correspondence school in languages from his home.

At the corner of Broadway and Cherokee street, the large building that was used for a bottling plant by the brewery is being converted into a box factory and warehouse by the shoe company, with a small portion of it to be devoted to the manufacture of parts of shoes. Machinery is being installed that is expected to enable the company to manufacture 125,000 shoe boxes and also 500 shoe containers a day.

The shoe company is planning to use its most recent purchase as a woodworking department, machinery and welding plant, and machinery and power office. Officers of the company said yesterday they expected the buildings to be ready for occupancy by Oct. 6.

The cave, which was one of the brewing company's principal assets when founded 12 years ago, is being used for storage purposes.

LEMP PLANT BEING PUT TO INDUSTRIAL USES

Some of the Buildings Purchased by the International Shoe Co.

With the International Shoe Co. busily engaged in preparations to occupy four buildings, another building now in use for storage and warehouse purposes, and a large vacant lot serving as a coal yard, the plant of the William J. Lemp Brewing Co., which had been inactive since the advent of prohibition, and was sold at auction June 28, is rapidly being converted into industrial enterprise.

The plant, consisting of six units, was sold for $585,000 at auction, where it was stated the appraisal value of the property was $4,912,500. Unit 1, consisting of three four-story storage and bottling buildings, was bought by the International Shoe Co. for factory purposes for $153,400. Unit 2, a former storage, fermenting and malt house, was bought by Barney Grossberg, 717 Washington avenue, for warehouse purposes for $42,000. The remaining four units of the plant were bought by farmers and banks for the Lemp interests.

Unit 2 Disposed Of. Since the auction, Unit 2 has been sold to the International Shoe Co., and the Schroeder Coal Co. At the auction, Unit 2, a former carpenter shop and wash house, together with 90,000 square feet of vacant property, was bought by the Mercantile Trust Co. for the Lemp interests for $60,000. The vacant property was sold for $40,000 Aug. 22 and the wash house and carpenter shop, containing 66,000 square feet, brought the same amount Aug. 30.

Besides the three units of the plant which remain unsold, the brewing company still owns and is trying to sell numerous other pieces of property used indirectly by the brewery.

More than 2000 persons were employed at the brewery. About 1000 will be employed by the new interests, most of them by the shoe company. The printing plant of the shoe company has been established in one of the buildings, at 902 Cherokee street.

Converted Into Box Factory. At the corner of Broadway and Cherokee street, the large building that was used for a bottling plant by the brewery is being converted into a box factory and warehouse by the shoe company, with a small portion of it to be devoted to the manufacture of parts of shoes. Machinery is being installed that is expected to enable the company to manufacture 125,000 shoe boxes and also 500 shoe containers a day.

Beauty Hints

These timely suggestions for preserving and enhancing your personal beauty are approved by leading authorities.

Smiling Teeth

Nothing affects the appearance more than the teeth. Beautiful, gleaming white teeth in perfect rows are the first requisite of personal loveliness. The teeth should be given scrupulous attention. Brush them two or three times a day with McKesson & Robbins' Calox Tooth Brush and with Calox Tooth Powder. This brush used properly with a rotating motion cleans the surfaces and crevices of the teeth thoroughly and safely. Calox, the oxygen tooth powder, combined with water, generates peroxide in the mouth. This is germicidal and also whitens the teeth. For gleaming, snowy teeth and a refreshing, cool, clean after-effect, use the McK & R Calox Tooth Brush and Tooth Powder.

For General Toilet Use

Everyday your skin is exposed to irritating effects of dust and wind. McK & R Soap Cream softens the skin, removes impurities and preserves its delicacy and whiteness from the effects of exposure to wind and sun. Soap Cream is also beneficial and delightfully refreshing as a shampoo. It brings out the lovely sheen and beauty of the hair and cleanses the scalp perfectly and safely. It contains no irritating caustic or alkali, and its high cleansing qualities and refreshing fragrance make it a favorite with discriminating women. Soap Cream may be used by men, too, for shaving. The superior complexion many men possess are attributed to daily use of high quality shaving soaps.

Beautiful White Hands

A delicate, soft white hand is indeed a thing of beauty. And it requires constant attention to keep it beautiful. To insure soft, white hands of beauty, use McK & R Almond Cream. Apply it freely and rub in well. It may be used to soften and beautify any part of the skin. It is very comforting and softening for rough, reddened arms, neck or shoulders. McK & R Almond Cream is exquisitely perfumed and is really a necessity for your dressing table all the year round.

To Protect Your Complexion

When the skin is dry or lacking in vitality, remember that McK & R Perfected Cold Cream is remarkable in its powers to rejuvenate and before retiring. The directions are simple. Cleanse the face thoroughly with pure water and then follow with McKesson & Robbins' Perfected Cold Cream. Massage it gently into the skin, rubbing always upwards and outwards. For softening the hands, apply the cream freely and wear a pair of loose-fitting kid gloves over night. To preserve your peach-bloom complexion, a nightly application of McKesson & Robbins' Perfected Cold Cream will prove very effective.

Keep Your Skin Clear

A poor complexion is often the result of constipation. A yellow, opaque or pimply skin is a symptom, a warning, of greater unpleasantness to come. If the cause is not removed, impurities in the system are bound to show in some form of poisoning. Keep your body clean inside as you do outside. Anax, the pleasant laxative will do this. It acts mildly and naturally, without pain. Every dressing case should contain Anax. It is invaluable for biliousness, sick headache, heartburn. Keep the system clean and the breath sweet. A body in good condition means a clear, healthy complexion.

G. A. R. VETERANS BEGIN REUNION IN DES MOINES

Civil War Soldiers to Have Three Days of Parades and Campfires.

By the Associated Press.
DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 25.—With three days of reunions, reminiscences, parades and camp fires ahead of them before they settle down to the transaction of official business on Thursday, the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic and the men and women of auxiliary and allied organizations, meeting here for the fifty-sixth annual G. A. R. national encampment, early today had taken complete possession of the city.

Among delegations scheduled to reach the city during the day are veterans of Oklahoma, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and California.

Nearly every department has one or more drum corps and the inspiring rattle of the drums and whistling fife enlivens the different state headquarters in every hotel of the city.

The ranks of the National Association of Army Nurses, women who during the Civil War cared for wounded soldiers, are thinning rapidly, and about 70 members are all that remain of the great association formed at the close of the Civil War.

Most of those now alive are invalids, says Mrs. Alice Carey Hixley, national president. At the last annual convention only 11 were able to attend and even less are expected in Des Moines.

Among early arrivals to the encampment was John L. Clem of Washington, D. C. Clem is better known as the drummer boy of Shiloh Ridge. Clem ran away from home at the age of 10 and for two years accompanied an Ohio unit as an unofficial mascot. When 12 years of age, he was permitted to enlist. During his first year in service he was promoted to a sergeant. Clem was one of the last soldiers of the Civil War to be discharged. He remained in the army until 1915, when he retired.

COMMANDER OF C-2 PLEASED WITH FLIGHT

Maj. Strauss Believes Trip Proves Aviation Will Meet Hopes in Transportation.

By the Associated Press.
ROSS FIELD, Arcadia, Cal., Sept. 25.—Enthusiasm over the successful trans-continental flight of the Army C-2, which arrived here today, nine days out from Langley field, Newport News, Va., was expressed here last night by its commanding officer, Maj. H. A. Strauss. "We believe our trip proves the feasibility of long distance flights," he said. "We believe our trip proves the feasibility of long distance flights," he said.

"Our elapsed time was 64 hours and 10 minutes over a route of approximately 3200 miles long. It was a very little trouble, that is, flying mostly along the Arizona border, where the heat and head wind made it difficult to carry enough gasoline for long flights."

"We are very much gratified with the flight, especially as it was made in an airplane not designed for long journeys nor for the high altitudes we reached."

"The route we took was satisfactory, and now, having made the trip, we believe that in aircraft of this type, carrying capacity, providing more comfort for crews and passengers and adequate arrangements for flight, with longer flight range, equipment for more gasoline and designed for higher altitudes, so that direct routes may be taken, trans-continental trip can be reduced from the 1200 miles we flew to approximately 700."

"We shall leave for San Francisco Tuesday midnight. We expect to arrive at 8 or 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. We shall start for Los Angeles and Roseburg Wednesday midnight, arriving about 8 or 9 o'clock Thursday morning."

Autumn Exposition and Sale of Home-Furnishings

"The Spirit of Home Pervades the Entire Suite of Your Ten Exhibit Rooms"

Such appreciation is most gratifying. It is inspirational in its nature, and will result in increased endeavor to please. Visit these beautiful rooms, and you will immediately plan for a Better Home. Pictured here are sketches from nine of the exhibition rooms. The furniture is priced below.

ing bill was sent to the President last night by the National Equal Rights League, a negro organization here. Congress adjourned without completing consideration of the bill.

BRANGWYN TO PAINT REST OF CAPITOL DOME

Contract of Welsh Artist for Eight More Works Assures Missouri a Real Monument.

The Capitol Decorations Commission, which has direction of the artistic embellishment of the new Capitol in Jefferson City, is rejoicing in its receipt today of a signed contract from Frank Brangwyn, the famous Welsh artist, to paint the canvases for the remaining eight spaces in the dome, the central architectural and artistic feature of the building.

Thus it becomes assured that the entire dome will be Brangwyn's work, which, in itself, is assurance, and the dome will become one of the notable works of America, the commission believes.

Brangwyn previously had been induced to paint the huge pendentives of the dome, which will be canvases, 45 feet long at their top, 15 feet at the base and 22 feet high. He has chosen to depict in these paintings the history of Missouri.

Will Paint Man at Work. The eight paintings now undertaken by Brangwyn will go into elliptical spaces above the main floor. They will be 8 by 14 by 28 feet, the longest dimension being the height.

Brangwyn has indicated that he will treat largely of labor in these spaces, another cause for rejoicing by the commission, because of the fact that one of Brangwyn's specialties is his treatment of man at work, in etching, particularly, but also in painting. This strengthens the commission's belief that the Missouri work will exhibit Brangwyn, not only at his maturity, but in his best character of work.

Brangwyn will receive approximately $68,250 for his decoration of the dome, a sum that is eyed enviously by art dealers in the East, who for several years have been unable to purchase examples of Brangwyn's brush work at any price.

Brangwyn's Standing. "A Brangwyn painting is virtually priceless," Arthur Kocian, secretary of the commission, said today. "We have as example the recent expenditure by a Japanese capitalist of $4,000,000 for a collection of Occidental art. By far the greatest representation in the collection is Brangwyn's—51 works—though it has not been disclosed what portion of the $4,000,000 the Brangwyns represent. I think that few will challenge the statement that Brangwyn is the greatest living artist, particularly notable for his decorative creations and his acceptance of this work for Missouri at the price he has set bears out his original statement that the only reason he considered the commission at any price was his desire to do a piece of work in an American public building which, with the building, would be a monument for all people of the future to gaze upon."

Girlish Complexion Now Easily Acquired

If your complexion's bad, just try this simple, harmless home treatment. It will prove a revelation to you. This evening before retiring cover the entire face with a thin layer of ordinary melleated wax, which you can get at any drug store. In the morning wash this off with warm water, followed by a dash of cold. Fine particles of the lifeless scarf skin adhere to the wax and are removed with it. Repeat this treatment nightly until the entire surface skin is absorbed in this way. Result—the loveliest natural complexion imaginable. The fresh, new skin then in evidence is soft and velvety in appearance, delicately tinted with the bloom of youth.

The old surface skin comes off so gradually there is no pain, no inconvenience, and no detention indoors. Freckles, moth patches, liver spots, pimples or blotches are, of course, removed with the skin itself.

Simple Christianity and Right of Girls to Smoke Go Hand in Hand With Mrs. Wiley

Double Standard of Morality Must Go, She Insists

Salvation of World Lies in Getting Closer to Christ, She Says—Fights Discrimination Between Sexes.

By CHARLES W. WOOD.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Can you picture a deeply religious woman—gracious, "old-fashioned," conservative and conventional, one who believes that getting back to simple Christianity is the greatest need of the hour—who still would flatly deny that she is for the right of a girl to smoke cigarettes?

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley thinks smoking is abominable. She is the wife of Dr. Wiley, the great health specialist, the apostle of pure food, pure air and pure living generally. She is the mother of two wonderful boys, 8 and 10 years old, and it is her greatest ambition that they shall play a leading part in bringing the world to Christ. But she is a militant feminist just the same. She believes in the basic right of all individuals to shape their own destinies, and she believes that girls as well as boys are individuals. Just now she is at the head of an organization of "home-makers," whose object is to remove the last remaining discrimination against women in American homes, and one of her pet ambitions is the discrimination as between boys and girls in the matter of moral conduct and personal habits.

Home Makers Most Numerous. The organization is the Home-Makers' Council of the National Woman's Party. To those who think of this party as being composed mostly of free ladies who are attemping to enter the trades and professions formerly monopolized by men, the very existence of this council may come as a surprise. The party recently sent a questionnaire to all its members asking them to state their occupation and to specify what particular discriminations against women seemed to exist therein. Those who gave their occupation as home makers numbered more than a thousand answered the questionnaire within the first few days. They were not expecting to enter the professions. They were not anxious to leave their homes to go to work. What they wanted was the right to continue as home makers on an equal footing with men.

"I had supposed," I told Mrs. Wiley, "that women were rather proud of their status as home makers."

"They are possibly more important," she answered, "but their rights in many states are still almost negligible. I am not talking merely of the legal discriminations against them in this respect make it impossible in many places for them to function as they should. I talked with a woman from the South the other day. She is happily married and very much in love with her husband, but he doesn't know she is a person, and she could not make him think so except by nagging him or starting a fight, because legally she is not a person. She had an estate before she was married, valued at about a thousand dollars. She had planned for years to devote this land to a specific charitable purpose. The day her husband came home from dinner and nonchalantly announced that he had sold it. He had a right to under the law. In that State, in spite of the Nineteenth Amendment, a married woman is still very much of a slave. Her work, her resources and her lifelong ambitions count for nothing. With such a social and legal tradition behind him, it doesn't even occur to her loving husband that these things ought to be considered."

No Equality Yet. "But even in states where property rights seem to be equal, it doesn't necessarily follow that women have achieved equality. In these states a woman may lead her home, enter a trade or profession and have full say as to what she shall do with her salary. Her husband can't take that—I mean the money which she has earned outside the home. But how about the money she has earned inside the home? How about her years of service in bearing and rearing children? How about her planning and managing the copious and faithful co-operation on her part by which the family has been saved from poverty and become well to do? If the man dies, the woman can command her legal share in his estate. But if he lives, she can't even command a salary. In great stretches of our country the economic status of the wife is still below that of the hired man or hired girl. She can't quit her job, but unless she fights the thing through in a personal quarrel with her husband, or dominates him by the sheer force of her personality, she cannot command any money wages for the job but must slave on through the years for her board and keep. On a large percentage of American farms today it is still the ridiculous practice for the wife to ask her husband for money with which to buy a new hat."

Nothing of this sort, one may be certain, exists in the Wiley home.

MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY
UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

Wife of Health Specialist Believes in Basic Right of All Individuals to Shape Their Own Destinies.

for; and in this upward struggle of womanhood there can be no final determination short of the absolute goal. The harmony based on authority has passed forever. We couldn't bring it back if we would. Only the harmony based on reason will give love its chance. Our real aim is more than an assertion of individual rights. It is the assertion of the most sacred right known to human history, the right of a man and woman to become completely united in love.

Personality Suppressed.

"Did you ever stop to think," Mrs. Wiley added, "that millions of homes today are cursed with discord simply because the personality of the mother has been suppressed? Take almost any case of completely dominated woman and you will find a woman who is making life unbearable. Suppose the woman married at 25. During the first five years, let us say, she has come to understand that she has no rights. She resigns herself to her fate. She concentrates on the care of her children. She quits being a person and becomes a professional mother for life. In another 10 years her children have become youths. They are less and less dependent upon her; but she, having no personality of her own to live with, is more and more dependent upon them. She babies them. They are her life and she sees her life departing from her. Desperately she clutches to retain it. She struggles to hold them as babies when they should be developing, nearly characteristic instead. She undermines their self-reliance. It is up to them either to rebel and break her heart or to succumb and go down in utter uselessness. Either way such a mother is hopeless. She has resigned her own personality for life, she has sold her eternal soul, to do 10 or 15 years of most necessary work in bearing and rearing children."

What We Should Aim At.

Mrs. Wiley continued, "is not to 'free' women from the great work of bearing and rearing children, but to keep them from destroying themselves in the process. There is no reason why any normal person's life should end at 50. A woman of 50 should be looking ahead. She should not be spiritually dependent upon anyone, but should be a person of her own. She should not love them perfectly, she should love them as she would herself. She should try to destroy them by doing things for them which they ought to do for themselves, or by trying in one way or another to make them live for her instead of living the greater life of universal service."

Old Days Are Gone.

In the ancient family, Mrs. Wiley pointed out, it was not necessary for a woman to keep all these things in mind. They were more or less settled themselves. For in those days, her job was the president of the household. She was a life-long job. The boys did not leave home. Even in their maturity, they were still subject to their parents. The girls left home, but only to be married definitely into other families, in which case all relationship with their original families ceased. The parents, then, even after they had become grandparents, retained their status in the household. The whole institution, the greater the age the greater the reverence in which they were held. The job of bearing and rearing children was sacred, and the job of industrial management was the only social organization known to that period, and this job of industrial management was succeeded by the even more honorable job of law-giver, counselor and sage.

"But that form of society," said Mrs. Wiley, "simply doesn't exist any longer. In order to continue living until death today we must learn to function in a very different way. We must adjust ourselves to life as it is not merely to words like home and family. The home is just as sacred as it ever was and the possibilities of married life today are greater than they ever were before. I can think of it only in terms of life-long spiritual union. The very thought of divorce comes to me with a shock, for marriage entered upon as a temporary expedient is not marriage at all. But all this does not do away with the fact that men and women must live a large part of their lives outside of what we know today as home, unless they are content to become very narrow and limited personalities."

Divorce Sometimes Necessary. "When I say that the thought of divorce brings shock," she added, "I don't want you to think that I am opposed to legal separation. If two people are incapable of mutual spiritual love they cannot be really married, regardless of what the law has to say about the matter. Such persons should be given an opportunity to correct their mistakes and to achieve a love which shall be lasting. Real love purifies. Laws aimed at preventing divorce are undemocratic and they will be fought."

Would Remove Discard.

Education, however, is at present the main reliance of the modern world. There is no talk as yet of a strike of farmers' wives or of any dramatic assertion of woman's equality. From Mrs. Wiley's standpoint, at least, the movement does not contain the slightest element of antagonism to men.

"Our object," she said, "is to remove the elements of discord in the home. Marriage between equals must, in its very nature, be a continual compromise. Harmony of a sort may be attained through the complete domination of one party by the other. Such harmony was the rule in the ancient patriarchal marriage, but society has evolved from that state and such marriage are now unthinkable. If harmony is to be achieved today, it must be achieved in a different way. It must be achieved through complete equality, or not at all. So long as rights are undetermined they will be fought."

PARIS.—So this is France!

Poor, torn, bleeding, ravaged France!

France full of a deep self-pity! And Paris, this playhouse of the world, is the crystallized heart of France. Is it the neutral foreigner who is dancing on her prostrate heart? Or is it the heart of France that is mending, that is seeking forgetfulness in delirious amusement, effacing the bloodstains and the tears with noisy gaiety?

Who are those overdressed, hard-faced, overpainted young women, and who those leisurely young men who throng the restaurants and dance from 3 o'clock onward? They begin in the Bois de Boulogne, at "Madrid," at the Acacias, at "Armenoville" by daylight, until the following dawn. Champagne flows like water, and the parties that used to cost 50 francs a head before the war now cost 250. And there are plenty of them. Women in sleeveless dresses, their arms with diamond bangles, row on row, sapphires and emeralds, breaking the monotony. What clothes! What sables and chinchilla wraps! To save their fragile forms from the cold and damp of an unprecedented summer! Perhaps these are some of the people who have enriched themselves with the millions that were voted for the reconstruction of devastated France.

Meanwhile there is much talk of a group party given by the Russian Grand Duke Boris and his wife, Champagne and out-of-season foods, rare flowers and Russian pre-war feasts. Even Parisians wondered where the money came from that paid it all. Paris, anti-Bolshevik as it is, has grown to be almost anti-émigré. Paris admits that misfortune has not taught the Russian anything; the old regime still persists in openly declaring that freedom is not for the people and the only way to manage the peasant is with the knout!

The emigré has come to stay and is a permanent, perplexing element in the hands of the French. The distinguished visitor in distress is now a household heritage. But so long as a Grand Duke sells a jewel to give a Romanov a head, it is little ground for complaint, at least among the crowd of feasters.

At the Palace Vendôme lives a pale-faced young Grand Duke who is seen to slip out of his hotel at midnight. Some say he will be the next czar. He has kept his night watch in Paris haunts, the white his Generals, subsidized by foreign hordes, set out at intervals to blast the homeless Russian trail!

A Paradise of Parasites.

To revisit Paris with proper appreciation one should not have the vivid images in one's mind of new Russia. Nor should one have come direct from the hard-working, struggling life of New York. Here in Paris is a world that the Russian upheaval tried to wipe out. A world of splendid vacuity. But it is indirectly stronger than nationality, and this class cannot be exterminated. Locally it may be surpassed, but it will reappear here, there, somewhere—and Paris, is the paradise of parasites.

All the futile pleasure hunters of the world meet here. And Paris self-consciously explains: "It is the Americans who like these things." "It is for the Americans we have to attract them." But these young men one sees are not American, for at that age the American man is working too hard to dance in Paris. Nor is that an American woman whose toy dog matches her coat.

One wonders which was brought to go with which, and whether she really cares for the dog. And although Americans like dancing, like gambling, like spending, like being free, even outside of America, that they don't like. And I know they don't like it. In Paris I saw places and heard things which were not American. If only on account of the American censor, I may not, as I would like to, describe some of my impressions of French realism.

The air is full of sex complex. The books, the papers and the theaters, the accomplished the nudity of mind compared to which the nudity of form is negligible. Paris has progressed beyond the indecent. It has become shock proof. Perhaps the most manifest of all new changes in France is in the position of woman. Paris used to be the kingdom of the feminine. Paris was emblematically the mistress of all the lovers of the world. But today there is a new complex, and it is no longer the man and woman hand in hand who rouse emotion.

I asked a Frenchman (membre de l'Académie) if he had read the new book called "Gyges and the Jewess," by Paul Ivo. It is published in Paris. But my French friend said he had not heard of it. "We have so much obscene literature on the bookstands that a new, even a foreign one, does not attract much attention."

It is probably harder to get at the heart of things in France than in any other country in Europe. One

STRIKE INJUNCTION PUT INTO EFFECT WITHOUT CHANGE

Shopmen to Seek Review of Judge Wilkerson's Order in U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

SIGNALMEN'S PAY HEARING REOPENED

Only 19 of 202 Class 1

Roads Have Reported Acceptance of Baltimore Peace Plan.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—The drastic temporary injunction order asked for by Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty against shop crafts strike leaders was put in force today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, without any of its effectiveness being modified.

Several slight changes in the wording of the order submitted Saturday were made by Judge Wilkerson to clarify its meaning.

Judge Wilkerson signed the order after Donald R. Richberg, defense attorney, said he was "unable to suggest any form of order which would be effective to give legal sanction to the exercise of authority which we respectfully urge is not within the power of the Court."

"To call this proceeding in its method and result 'due process of law,' to justify the denial of constitutional rights of the defendants by this judicial finding, based on ex parte affidavits, seems to me to disregard the fundamental principles of our system of laws, as well as to exercise a power specifically denied to the Federal courts by an act of Congress passed in order to prevent the very deprivation of liberty and property which is here accomplished," Richberg said.

Qualifying his statement with the assertion that a course of action had not been definitely determined, Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the railway shop crafts, indicated today that the next step in the shopmen's fight against the injunction would be a petition to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for a review of Judge Wilkerson's order.

To combat Attorney-General Daugherty's efforts to have the temporary writ made permanent means a long, costly fight, Richberg said, a fight which would severely tax the resources of the unions.

"What we are most interested in now," he said, "is an effort to obtain a review of this case by the Circuit Court of Appeals."

Blackburn Esterline, assistant Solicitor-General, who led the Government forces in the hearing, planned to depart at the conclusion of the proceedings for Denver to represent the Government in a suit filed by several Western railroads seeking to set aside a ruling by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Judge Wilkerson's court and the United States Railroad Labor Board shared in the interest of the railway world today with the reopening of hearings on the petition of 15,000 signal men for an increase from July 1. In a decision handed down by the board at the time it reduced the pay of the signal men and signal men, but the signal men on the July 1 walkout with the shop crafts.

The July 1 cut in the signal men's wages ranged from 5 to 7 cents an hour. Forty-two railroads and their subsidiaries are parties to the rehearing.

Only 19 of the 202 class 1 roads had reported acceptance of the Baltimore settlement plan today. Negotiations are under way on the Chicago & Alton, however, for a new shop agreement.

Surplus of Cars for Freight Gons.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The railroads have exhausted their surplus freight cars for the first time since November, 1920, because of increased industrial activity throughout the country. The association of Railway Executives announced today that the increase in the movement of crops, fuel and other commodities brings a heavier demand for cars than in the fall, a statement said, so that the present situation is considered seasonal and normal.

The demand upon the carriers to haul lumber, combined with the emergency movement of coal, has centered attention also on the depleted motive power equipment of the roads, which has been affected by the shopmen's strike. The association's last report showed the nation's last reported one-half million of locomotives unit for service more than 30 per cent in August. Since then many locomotives have been retired for repairs, some railroad officials admitted today, estimating that approximately one-half of the road's motive power is unavailable for use in the present emergency.

world, but they walk like kings. Little black overalls "gamins" run part, flying their bright-colored, cubistic kites. It is all very picturesque and typical; one feels oneself to be playing a part.

Thence to a little theater in the "quarter." It is a variety show, very small and intimate. The house is packed. The composer sings his own songs and recites his own verses, which are extremely humorous. The audience and the stage compose verses together, which are written down on a blackboard. The audience shouts out its suggestions and rhymes, with absolute self-consciousness and sometimes wit.

July 14 a Real Holiday.
 The day to be in Paris is the 14th of July, which celebrates the anniversary of the fall of the Bastille. That is the day that the smart people mostly go out of Paris. "It is a national holiday and the streets are completely given over to amusement. It is perhaps the only day in all the year in which the real France and the French spirit is allowed to come to the surface in Paris. The only time that one senses the French Revolution and its psychology on the people."

The night of the 14th of July "Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite," is a reality. At the cafes, where people sit at little tables, one the sidewalk, drinking, smoking, laughing, there is a genuine cordiality—a kind of subconscious republican satisfaction! The people have overthrown the tyranny of the noblesse and destroyed the monarchy. The people have won it is the people's night. They dance! How they dance!

At every street corner and in every square a band stand has been erected. A band plays dance tunes all night. The musicians are old. Their music is old. They only play old tunes. But they play with such energy as if they enjoyed playing. The people are delighted. The crowd makes a circle and the couples dance, even old women dance together. On the sidewalk, in the uneven streets or on the train lines, no matter where. The thing is to dance, and then go to the cafe, sip a little glass of wine and dance again.

This year it is cold, so cold, but dancing makes one warm. A thunderstorm descends on the innocent enjoyment, but it does not damp the spirits. Paris does not mean to be done out of her annual revel. Every one is good-natured, philosophical, uncomplaining. God never was with the proletariat. God sends rain on national holidays and fairs to working people. They shrug their shoulders and have another "petit verre" under the sheltering awning of the cafe! When the shower is over the crowd surges back onto the wet-pavement and the dancing goes on until 6!

against divorce too often make the achievement of love impossible. It seems to me that people must be more or less free to do wrong in order that they shall have freedom to choose the right.

"I should insist, at least," Mrs. Wiley added, "on the equal right of men and women to go wrong. The double standard must be abolished. This is deeper than statute law and if we are to abolish it, it must be abolished in the home. I believe that smoking, for instance, is a bad habit, and I hope my boys don't smoke. If I had any girl's I should hope that they would not smoke, either. But I should rather they all would smoke than that there should be any discrimination in the matter. If sowing wild oats is tolerated in a man, it should be tolerated in a woman, too. We must have equality in education; not that boys and girls should be brought up to the idea that they are similar, but they should have a definite understanding of their social, political and moral equality."

Girls as Parasites.
 "I don't think it is a good plan for children to be given a large allowance of spending money, but the father who gives such an allowance to his boys and withholds it from his girls is contributing to one of the most vicious influences in modern life. He is encouraging his girls to become parasites, to believe that it is all right for them to accept favors instead of meeting their friends as friends. The girl today who expects young men to take her to the theater, to pay the car fare and to meet the other expenses incidental to their companionship is starting life under a great moral handicap. I do not mean that it is wrong for them to permit this. It is true that men generally have more money than women and more opportunity to earn it. This is an injustice which the Woman's Party hopes to abolish. But with it, we hope to abolish the suggestion that men should pay simply because they are men. The girl who hasn't thoroughly got rid of that notion is likely to grow up into a wife who will ask her husband if she can buy a new dress."

"What is the greatest need of the American home today?" I asked Mrs. Wiley. "Suppose you were able to introduce just one reform. What would it be?"

"A genuine revival of religion," she answered. "A genuine faith in God. A clear understanding that life is greater than our material interests. The profound conviction that we are here not merely to pass away the time as pleasantly as we may, but to work out the universal purpose. I do not mean to be narrow. I would not think of imposing my particular dogmas on anyone else, and certainly the Woman's Party is not interested in propagating any religious creed. But without a deep sense of his return to God, any social reforms which man attempts will almost certainly be futile. Human laws define our rights. They may make it certain that we shall get what we think we deserve. But they cannot make it certain that we shall live according to our opportunities. Life is more than getting. Most of life is giving. Only when we are in touch with the great power which inspires us to give for all that life is worth can the possibilities of manhood and womanhood be realized."

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR AMERICAN CHILDREN

Discovery of This Continent Was an Accident and Columbus' Spirit Was Broken Because This Supposed Ridge of Sand Barred His Way to India.

THE Post-Dispatch today begins publication of Prof. Hendrik Van Loon's new book, "American History for American Children." Though written in the simplest phraseology for comprehension by the minds of children, it also will be found equally interesting by older readers.
The Post-Dispatch recently concluded publication of Prof. Van Loon's "The Story of Mankind," which enjoyed the greatest popularity ever won by any historical work. There is every reason to believe that all who read the interesting chapters in that book will find the daily installments of "American History for American Children" equally fascinating. An installment of about the length of today's will be printed in the Daily Post-Dispatch until the book is concluded. There will be no Sunday installment. Begin it today! Public school pupils will find it very helpful in their school work.

By HENDRIK VAN LOON,
Author of "The Story of Mankind."

THE discovery of America was an accident. It was a very pleasant accident for those who now happen to live in this happy country of endless plains and high mountains and broad rivers. But it sadly spoiled the career of the brave men who first dared to cross the ocean in their search for the mysterious Empire of Cathay, and who found the road to China and the Indies obstructed by an unexpected ridge of land which stretched both southward and northward as far as their tiny little ships ventured to sail.

It broke the proud spirit of Columbus, who died ignorant of the fact that he had stumbled upon a new continent. It caused the death of a large number of hardy pioneers who were convinced that "just a few miles more" would bring them within sight of long-lost Zipangu, which was their name for Japan.

For almost a century it prevented a definite settlement of the new regions which were regarded as a way-side station on the road to the East and not a possible and highly desirable home for the hard-pressed people of Europe.

But before we come to the point in our history where we shall tell you of the conquest of the new continent by the Spaniards, and the Frenchmen, and the Englishmen, and the Dutch, we must give you a short account of these long centuries when the geographers of Florence and Nuremberg listened with doubtful interest to certain strange rumors that reached them from the North and when the learned professors of Paris and Prague and Bologna were undecided whether these accounts must be treated with due scientific respect or should be dismissed as the "yarns" of superstitious sea captains.

Therefore we must go back a few hundred years and begin at the beginning, when Europe was a wilderness and awaited the coming of man.
(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

16-STORY BANK BUILDING BOUGHT BY ENGINEERS' BROTHERHOOD

Organization Plans to Erect 21-
Story Structure as Permanent Quarters for Bank.
By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 25.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has announced simultaneously the purchase of a 16-story bank building in the heart of this city and the completion of plans to erect a 21-story bank building. The latter, according to the announcement, will be the permanent, the former,

the temporary, quarters of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' Co-operative National Bank.
The banks, which started less than two years ago with paid-in stock of $653,000, reported assets of $17,- 532,487.13. The first three floors are fitted for banking rooms, the upper floors for offices. The sub-floors contain vaults, and can be flooded in case of emergency. The reported price was $2,550,000.

VETERANS OF 35TH DIVISION GATHER FOR ANNUAL REUNION

Gov. Allen of Kansas to Be Principal Speaker at Meeting Held in Wichita.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 25.—This city, for three days, commencing today, will be the assembly point for former members of the Thirty-fifth Division in their annual reunion. The organization "with the earmarks of a National Guard division," which it was, and proud of it, will renew its interests as born and nurtured in the late war. The wheat show, now in progress, will tend to add color and entertainment for the veterans. Gov.

MAN SHOT OUTSIDE HOME
BY SUITOR OF DAUGHTER

John Grivet, 41 years old, of 6929 Maho avenue, a machinist, was shot twice in the abdomen at 10:30 o'clock last night by Harry Guarino, 26, of 4157 Vermont avenue, a lamp lighter, who has been attentive to Grivet's daughter, Marie, 20, for the last three years.

The shooting occurred outside the Grivet home, following the family's return from a visit to the home of a relative. Guarino had accompanied them. Liquor had been served. Mrs. Grivet said and Guarino became intoxicated and was quarrelsome on the way home. He departed, but returned after 15 minutes.

Grivet, who had gone home in advance of his family and who had not observed Guarino's condition and mood, answered his knock and demanded to know what he wanted. Mrs. Grivet said he could not hear Guarino's response but that almost immediately there were two shots. Guarino fled and escaped, pointing a revolver at Grivet's son, John, 18, who started to follow him.

Grivet is at Alexian Brothers' Hospital in a serious condition. Carpenter, 89, found dead from Gas Charles E. Fort, 89 years old, of 2840 Lempi avenue, a carpenter, was found dead in his home at 10:30 last night when his wife, Mary, returned after a few hours' absence with friends. He was seated in a chair in the kitchen and his head rested on a gas stove, the burners of which had been turned on, but not lighted. He had suffered from rheumatism.

WHAT DID YOU SEE TODAY?

Volunteer Reporters Tell the Post-Dispatch of the Interesting, Unusual and Often Humorous Incidents They Encounter.

ONE WAY TO GET IT.

After the gates were closed at Sunday's game I walked over to the Brown's office on Spring avenue and I saw a man knock on the door. He asked if he got a foul ball knocked over the grand stand (they would admit him). He was assured they would. In a few minutes he returned with a ball and was admitted. How and where he got this ball, no one knows. Had it in alcohol, perhaps.

ED. MOETZMAN.
1418A Newhouse avenue.

INDOMITABLE.

I saw a man break his arm in two places in an effort to crank his car. I saw him come out of a doctor's office with his arm in splints. He cranked the car with his other hand and drove away.

MRS. SOL SIDER.
5294 Cabanne avenue.

LIVING HIGH.

I saw a dog sitting on the edge of a two-story building gnawing a bone. MISS GERTRUDE PLATT.
2727 Stoddard street.

SOLITAIRE BASEBALL.

It is interesting to watch a 5-year-old boy across the street play baseball by himself. He plays the whole team. I watch his strike out, make a run for first base, be put out and walk disgustedly back, get a home run, slide into base, pitch and catch—all without either bat or ball. I've never learned what the scores were.

GEO. H. VENABLE.
Kane, Ill.

SOME GAME—RAIN.

Thursday during the rain I saw four boys playing cork ball. The "ins" and the catcher were under a wagonshed, while the pitcher, wearing a raincoat, was out in the shower. When the side was retired, the pitcher gave the raincoat to one of the opposing players.

JOHN J. WOMAN.
2623 Caroline street.

TALE OF THE TAGS.

On Monday I found myself too late to get in to see the Browns-Yanks game. I wandered about the side streets, which were choked with automobiles parked there. I saw 95 of the license plates that all parts of the country were represented. Like the ancient Greeks in attendance at their triennial Olympiad, we Americans gather for the annual baseball classic.

JESSEY BOONBY.
2321A Sidney street.

THE LEADERS.

The other day I saw an aged woman with a young one at the ball game. The old lady asked how those men playing ball managed to get excited from work every day.

RALPH CHICKLEY.
1325 Railway Exchange Bldg.

AS THE LAW DIRECTS.

When on Oakland avenue I saw a young boy hop a truck. He immediately pulled out a bright red handkerchief and tied it on his belt.

MORRIS NOVACK.
1122 N. Thirtieth street.

GO-STOP IN AN OFFICE.

Our office is small and two members of the force (a girl and the boss) are heavyweights. They met in a small passageway, resulting in a congestion of traffic. The girl quickly sidled sideways, held her arms out like a traffic cop and signaled the boss to go straight ahead. He complied and traffic was resumed.

THELMA McILVANEY.
2225 Locust street.

AN EXAMPLE OF THRIFT.

I saw a man in an ice cream parlor order a 10-cent dish of cream, then come down in a small notebook. "Ice cream, 10c," "FLA HUGER."

3225 Barrett street.

5-FOOT BALUCITHERIUM SKULL.
REPORTED FOUND BY EXPLORER

PEKIN, Sept. 25.—Returning here today from a 3000-mile expedition into the Khamsi and Altai mountains in Mongolia, R. C. Andrews reported finding in the northwest part of the desert of Gobi a five-foot skull belonging to the balucitherium, a large land mammal of the neocene geological period.

Andrews said the skull indicated the beast was 15 feet in height and 25 feet in length.

Why Teeth Discolor
Food and smoke stains lodge in film

A way has been found to beautify teeth, to make them whiter, cleaner, safer. Millions now employ it. You see the results wherever you look. Countless teeth glisten which once were dim.

These effects come by combating film. They are coming to careful people the world over, largely through dental advice. If you don't know this new-day method, we urge you to make this test.

Film makes teeth dingy

You can feel on your teeth a viscous film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. The ordinary tooth paste cannot effectively combat it. So brushing teeth in old ways leaves much of that film intact.

Film absorbs stains from food, smoke, etc. Then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That is why teeth lose their luster.

Now ways to fight film

Dental science, after long research, has found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it. Thus the film is day by day combated, and without using harmful grit.

Able authorities have amply proved these methods. Now leading dentists everywhere advise them. Careful people of some fifty nations now enjoy the benefits.

A new-type tooth paste has been created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent PAT. OFF.

The New-Day Dentifrice

Ten Days Free
To show you the results

The coupon will bring you a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Mail it now, for this test will be a revelation to you. You will see and feel results which have won millions to this method. And you can have them always if you will.

Other essentials

Modern research also proves that other effects are essential, and Pepsodent brings them.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth, which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize the acids which cause decay.

Old-time tooth pastes, based on soap and chalk, decreased these vital factors. Pepsodent, with every use, gives manifold power to these tooth-protecting forces in the mouth.

It also polishes teeth so film less easily adheres.

In all these ways, Pepsodent is fast inaugurating a new dental era.

Delightful results in a week

The results of Pepsodent are so quick and apparent that a very short test reveals them. One week will generally show effects amazing and delightful.

Those effects will be convincing. You will realize that you need them, and that your children need them. They mean that the great tooth enemies are now effectively combated.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

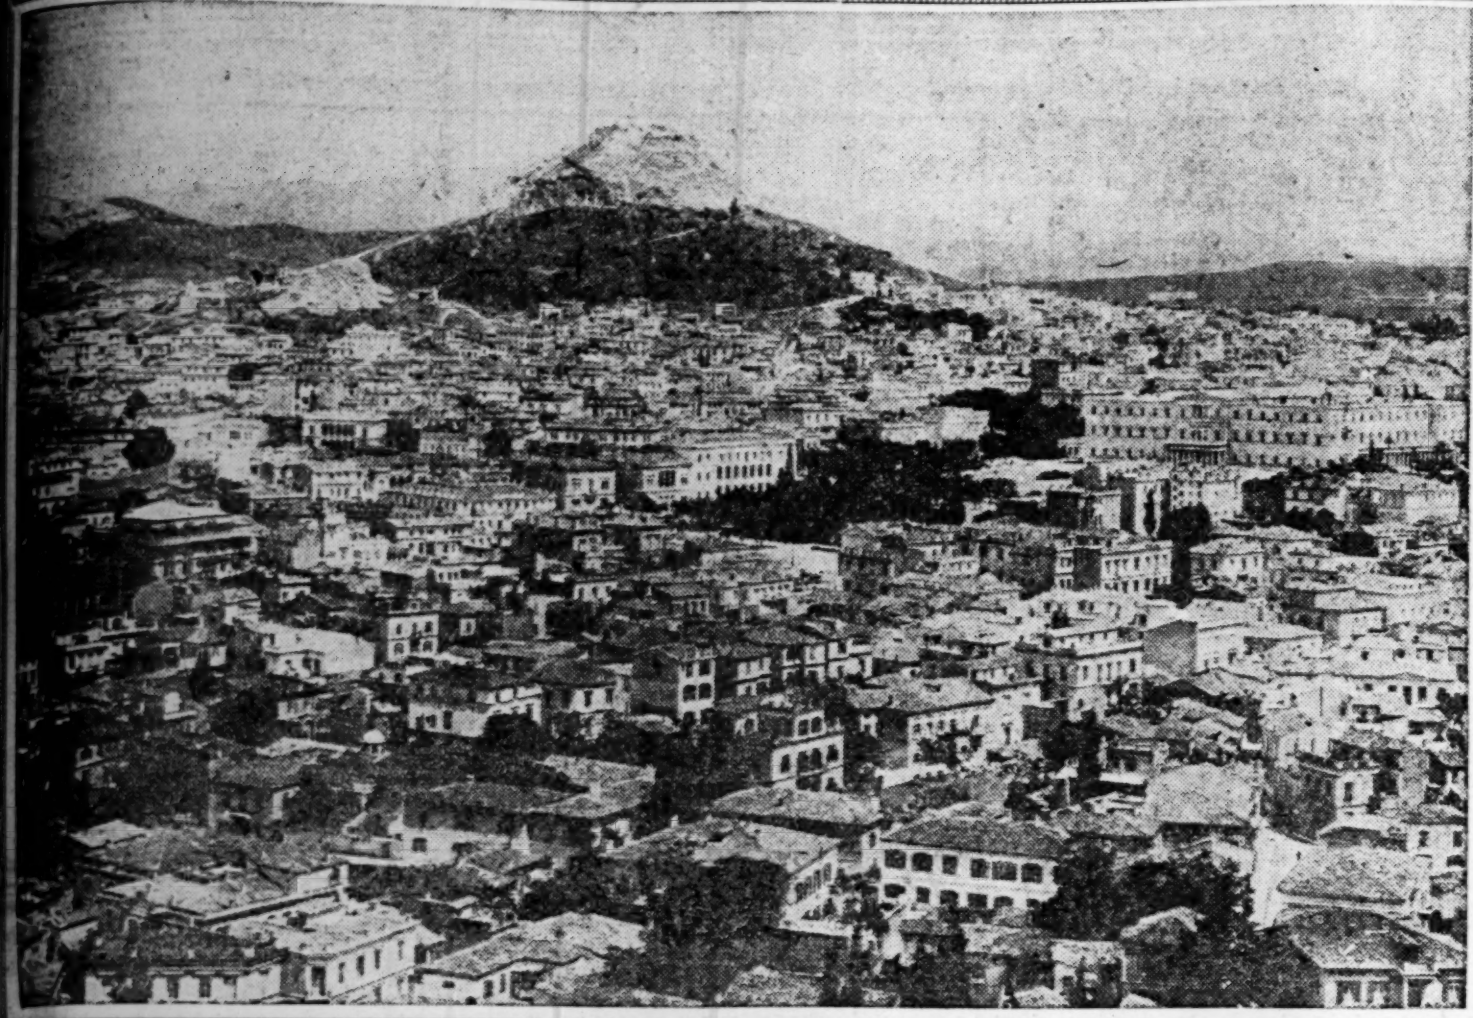

Then decide by what you see and feel, by the results that old ways never brought. This is too important to neglect. Cut out the coupon now.

Maxims of a Modern Maid

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall
(Copyright 1922)

THE mislaid in the desert of matrimony is the idea that you could be happier with some one else—as you find out after the divorce and the remarriage to "some one else."

Whether a woman has brains is still, to most men, a matter for personal investigation. And it's the ornamental heads that, like dishonest politicians, court the fullest inquiry.

Girls used to believe that the man who took the first "no" for an answer wasn't worth having. Nowadays the point is shrouded in uncertainty, since no girl dare utter even one negative to the backing and shying male.

The problem in the elderly young woman's life just now is whether to keep her hair bobbed and defy fashion, or let it grow and look her full age once more.

Sometimes a cat says "miaou miaou" and sometimes she says that your husband looks tired and "My dear, why do you let him work so hard?"

Was there ever a husband so out of love with his wife that he didn't suffer from a sense of outrage when he discovered she, too, was out of love with him?

No, Serena, men never talk gossip. They sit at their club windows and discuss the Einstein theory, the Darwinian hypothesis and whether Mars is really inhabited!

The last lingering lunacy of love is the conviction that the party of the second part "never will forget."

Repentance simply means that the average person finds it impossible to buck continuously the ideas of his contemporaries as to what constitutes the proper thing.

lately nothing in that trunk! And beyond it stood trunk No. 12. And beyond that stood trunk No. 13.

I went down the stairs slowly. Five times I stopped and stood, trying to overcome the trembling of my limbs; trying to regain my usual composure. This unseemly business had gone far enough; trunk No. 10 might do for a Lady Mercedes, but for a respectable American wife—no! The tenth Mrs. Tulkington might please Lord Algy, but as for pleasing Augustus Tulkington—no! I met Susan in the hall. I grasped her arm firmly.

"Susan," I said, "I have had enough of this! I have had plenty of Susan."

"Augustus!" she cried, and threw her arms around me. "Augustus, I have had more Augustuses than I could bear. I want just my own old Augustus! I want my plain old Augustus!"

"And I," I said briskly, "want nothing but my same old Susan. This whole business has been nothing but idiocy. We can vary the monotony of our married existence without committing imitation bigamy by retail and wholesale."

I was tremendously relieved, for I admit now that I had been tremendously frightened. The Tenth Mrs. Tulkington had upset me.

"Susan," I whispered firmly, for I was not going to let her come under the influence of Amelia Tithers another moment, "go up to your room and prepare for a journey—a journey with your own husband. You are going to Palm Beach with your Augustus, a respectable banker and married man. In five minutes the car will be at the door. Hurry—for we have no time to waste. But Susan!" I added as she turned to hurry up the stairs, "Susan! Will you tell me one thing? What was in the Eleventh Trunk?"

"Nothing, Augustus," she said, her hand on the rail.

"And in the Twelfth Trunk?" I asked with a deep breath.

"Less than nothing, Augustus," said Susan.

"I shuddered to think of what a wife may be capable when driven to it by deadly routine."

"And in the Thirteenth Trunk, Susan?" I asked hoarsely.

"Why, you old silly, my own clothes," said Susan with a laugh.

How Some Antiques Have Been Turned to Modern Uses

THE lure of collecting antiques, when once experienced, either inspires one with the desire to study the whole subject carefully before buying old things, or else it drives one to the extravagant purchase of articles that are neither genuine nor valuable.

Owners of country homes with big, old-fashioned, open fireplaces are indulging the fad for antique chimneys cooking utensils when they are fortunate enough to find them. These utensils include heart-shaped bellows, which are a powerful aid to a lazy fire, the long, two-tined ash-rake, designed originally to rescue potatoes baked in hot ashes, the hand-dug iron shovel, the upright broiler with a drip cup to catch the juices of the meat, the open-faced oven which was also used as a dish-warmer, and an array of copper saucepans with long handles.

There is also a tea kettle to hang on the crane, and pots to hang on the iron arm and bowl in accompaniment to the kettle's song. Of course, stoves are placed on each side of the fireplace, with old-fashioned crickets or four-legged stools to rest the feet on conveniently near.

One man found in his travels an old, long-handled contribution box and had it cleverly fitted with a little carved-wood clock that filled in the space. When polished and hung, the box was quite a thing of beauty.

There is always a search for old carved Bible boxes, which are refitted elaborately for jewel or silver cases. When done over with new and appropriate hardware these boxes are attractive and unusual, as nothing like them is to be had in modern shops.

The popularity of the old dressing or shaving cases, and the exorbitant prices paid for them when found have tempted modern cabinetmakers to copy them in model and design and "age" them by means of a few wood blemishes and wormholes thrown in for luck. These cases are placed on tables of matching wood, with one wide or two narrow drawers, and make wonderfully quaint-looking dressing tables. Most of the cases have two or four drawers, and the mirror, round, square or oval, works on a swivel. As the mirrors are usually of poor quality, new ones are put in during the reconstruction period.

We occasionally meet the old high-boy serving in different capacities in modern surroundings. One was noticed the other day which was being used as a music cabinet. A long mirror had been attached to the back, which reflected the marble busts of two prominent composers. The drawers of one of the highboys had been made into drop fronts with elaborate hinges, added; it was topped with a tall looking glass of its period, and, thus constructed, it was the principal piece of furniture in a man's dressing room.

There is a wonderful old Spanish carved altar chair with kneeling bench and book rack in a very modern library. Velvet cushions adorn the chair and kneeling bench, and an expensively bound volume of Poe's "Raven" is usually open on the Bible rack. Evidently captured on the same trip, hanging trip, is a charming old triptych from which the holy pictures have been removed is near by. Photographs of the son and help of the family at various periods of his life have been substituted for the holy pictures. One cannot help wondering whether the chair and triptych talk over their sad transformation in the dead of night, and whether they feel young and foolish in such modern surroundings.

A clever woman had an old-fashioned hat stand with a settee base cut in two pieces. The settee, with an umbrella stand at either end, was placed near the front door, while the upper part, with a mirror and six hat pegs, was placed above, over a long, narrow table, which held a handsome pottery jar and a hemmed silver card tray. Of course, the pieces were all done over, and they looked far more interesting divided than they had when combined.

Real banjo clocks are growing scarce, but there are a number of modern imitations that are pretty if properly hung, though they rarely deceive a collector who has made a study of banjo-clock peculiarities.

Now and then old chair chairs are to be found. The hinged seats used for Bible boxes, and they make fascinating hall chairs.

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 236—Turning the Coins.

Set 10 coins in a circle, as illustrated, with all of the heads up. Ask someone to start with any coin and count around the circle to the right, 1, 2, 3, 4. The fourth coin the spectator must turn over. He may then start again on any head he chooses and count 1, 2, 3, 4, turning the fourth coin. The problem is to continue this procedure until nine of the coins are turned tails. The spectator, however, will find that after he has turned four or five coins he will be forced to start on a tail, or else stop on a coin already turned. The performer, however, finds no difficulty in accomplishing the task the first time he attempts it.

The rule for success is very simple. Start anywhere you please and count 1, 2, 3, 4. Turn the coin, and then secretly count three more. Skip them and start your count on the next coin, again counting 1, 2, 3, 4. Skip three more and again count. Continue this procedure and the trick will come out correct.

ODD AND INTERESTING FACTS

Goldfish and salmon never sleep. A Pole, still living at the age of 132, claims to be the only survivor of Napoleon's armies.

The use of the fleur de lis as a symbol of royalty cannot be traced further back than the twelfth century, and it is probably not of French origin. It is said to occur in headdresses of Egyptian sphinxes, and the symbol was in olden times an ornament of Greek, Roman, Spanish and English Kings.

When the people of Northern Europe were living in reed huts the Mayas of Yucatan seem to have been on the verge of true civilization. The cause of their decline is unknown. When the conquistadores came, soon after the year 1500, their temples, palaces and cities were already in ruins.

In the Carolinas, the most popular of the Cook Islands in the Pacific Ocean, it is provided by law that the head of each family shall plant and cultivate a coconut tree for each year of a child's age until the child is old enough to plant trees for himself. It is almost needless to add that the island is noted for the abundance of its fine coconuts.

The Revolution, the Blackhawk, the Indian, Sabine Indian disturbances, Mexican Civil, Spanish-American, Philippine insurrection and the war with Germany are American wars which started in April.

It is easy to distinguish a planet from a star because a star twinkles and a planet never does except when it is near the horizon. Also, planets are brighter. They are nearer the earth and their light is reflected to us like the moon. Stars are fixed bodies outside our solar system.

Armstrong's Linoleum

for Every Floor in the House

How linoleum makes the floor a part of the room

THERE are many things about a linoleum floor that you are sure to like. In linoleum you can get designs and colorings that will contribute to the color scheme you have in mind. In addition, a linoleum floor is the easiest of all floors to clean. It never needs refinishing, never splinters. An occasional waxing and polishing keeps it looking new.

This modern linoleum properly laid is a permanent floor. Proper laying means cementing the linoleum to a lining of builders' deadening felt which is glued to the bare floor boards. This makes a waterproof floor, free from unsightly cracks.

Our booklet, "Decorative Linoleum Floors," contains twenty-four color plates, showing Armstrong's Linoleum in the many patterns that you can see at good stores—Jaspe, carpet inlaid, parquetry inlaid, inset tiles, printed designs. This booklet will be sent you on request.

Any good furniture or department store will give you estimates of the cost of linoleum floors properly laid in your home. Good laying is worth the cost because it means longer wear.

Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs

For people who live in apartments or who have houses on short leases and consequently do not wish to install permanent linoleum floors, Armstrong's Linoleum is also made in the form of bordered rugs. Thirty attractive patterns in four sizes from 6 x 9 feet to 9 x 12 feet.

One removes dingy coatings from teeth
The other cleanses crevices between teeth, hardens tender gums, sweetens the breath

SLOWLY but persistently that yellowish coating—film—comes over the whitest teeth. It hides their natural beauty. You can watch it dim their lustre.

But your teeth have hidden enemies, too.

Unseen, in tiny crevices too small for your toothbrush to get in, shreds of food collect. They ferment. They form acids that start decay.

Small wonder dentists say, Use Both! Tooth paste to restore whiteness; liquid antiseptic to purify the crevices.

The glycerine in Sanitol Tooth Paste softens the film. That is why one-third of it is glycerine.

When the film is softened, the fine, gritless dental chalk in Sanitol clears it away. In this simple way the natural whiteness of your teeth is restored!

Then Sanitol Liquid Antiseptic cleanses the tiny crevices. It flows between teeth, removes fermenting shreds of food, and so protects teeth from decay. It soothes tender gum tissues, and hardens them. It sweetens the breath.

The Sanitol dental combination leaves your entire mouth with a clean, exhilarating freshness—an after-feel of perfect and complete cleanliness.

For when it came to who was best
George Sisler's name led all the rest.

St. Louis fans who had the blues,
When pennant hopes were disappearing,
Reacted to the gladsome news
And overhead the skies are clearing.
They're now indulging in a smile
As "Sis" was winner by a mile.

As well as in purloining bases;
His head would always fit his hat,
Although he was the Ace of Aces.

But as a rule the biggest roll
Will bring the pennant to the pole.

ARSENIC KILLED
MAN WHO ATE AT OFFICE CAFETERIA

Finding of Poison in Stomach of W. P. Robinson Reported by Coroner's Analyst and Inquiry Is Ordered.

RELATIVES DECLARE
HE HAD NO WORRIES

Traffic Manager Became
Last Friday and Died There Night—No One Else at Plant Affected.

William P. Robinson, 30 years of age, 6138 Suburban avenue, traffic manager of the Landis Machi-Co., second street and Gano avenue, whose funeral took place yesterday died from arsenic poisoning. The cause was disclosed today following a report by the Coroner's analyst, Dr.
F. W. Abeken. Robinson's family had attributed his death to pneumonia.

Following Dr. Abeken's report which was based on a chemical analysis of the contents of Robinson's stomach, the Coroner assigned Health Department inspectors to investigate the case.

Robinson became ill at 10 a.
m. Friday, an hour after he had eaten a ham sandwich and drunk a glass of milk at a cafeteria conducted at the plant of the Landis Machine Co. for the accommodation of employees. His symptoms were noticed at first as those of stomach trouble because he suffered from indigestion. His condition grew worse and at 2:30 p. m. he was taken home.
His wife gave him home remedies including oil, but was unable to save him. He complained of severe intermittent pains in the stomach.
At 11 p. m., a few minutes before Robert Burns, 4506 Olive street, summoned Robinson died.

Arsenic in Stomach.
The case was reported to the Coroner and an autopsy disclosed presence of an irritant in the stomach. Later the viscera were subjected to chemical analysis, and Dr. Abeken reported "sufficient arsenic present to have caused death."

Mrs. Minnie Robinson, the wife and her son, Oliver, expressed grief when this information was given to them at the Coroner's office. They said they were convinced that Robinson was the victim of an accident. He had no worries, they said, and had no mentioned any enemies.

Mrs. Robinson recalled that she had an appointment to meet her husband at noon last Friday, and when she reached the appointment place she was met by her son, informed her that his father had come ill and was being taken home.
Upon her husband's arrival, he died after a short time.

No One Else at Plant Ill.
The coroner was informed every respect and that, so far known, none of the other employees complained of any ill effects suffering there. In fact, the Coroner was told, the cafeteria was possessed with nearly all of the employees. The Health Department inspectors were directed to find out, if possible, if any bug or rat poison had been used at any time in or about the cafeteria. The inquiry has been pending a report from the inspectors.
